TRIED RECIPES.

Pear Pie.

This is made with one crust and may be made with either canned or fresh fruit. Cut the pears in small pieces, dust with cinnamon; thoroughly mix two tablespoonsful of sugar with two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, add one cup of thin cream or condensed milk diluted one-half. Mix all together, then pour over pears and bake.

Pumpkin Pie.

Try this for pumpkin pies. Mix two teaspoonfuls of flour and the same quantity of cornmeal with the sugar and spice, instead of using eggs.

Corn Chowder.

Take two cupfuls of corn, canned or fresh, and cut pared potatoes into dice to make the same measure. Chop a good-sized onion and fry it in the fat of two slices of bacon, also diced. Put the onion, potatoes and corn into a saucepan in layers, adding the bacon. Add two cups of hot milk thickened with two rounding tablespoonfuls of flour, into which one tablespoonful of butter has been rubbed. Cook twenty minutes or till potatoes are soft. Lay split crackers over it and let steam for a few minutes before serving. With bread and butter and a light dessert this will make a full dinner, the quantity, of course, being regulated by the size of the family.

Onion Pickles.

After removing the skins take off first layer of onion. Put into strong brine for three days. Bring vinegar to a boil and pour over onions, which have already been placed in the cans or bottles. A few blades of mace and a small quantity of cayenne pepper may be added if liked.

Cream of Carrot Soup.

Wash and scrape four medium sized carrots, cut into pieces, cover with boiling water, add a teaspoonful of salt and boil until tender. Drain and mash. Place a quart of milk in a double boiler and when it boils add the carrot. Place a tablespoonful of butter and a finely chopped onion of medium size in a frying pan and brown slightly, then add one cup of the water in which the carrots were cooked, thickened with one tablespoonful of flour. Stir the mixture into the hot milk, cook three minutes, season with pepper and salt and one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, strain and serve.

To Blacken a Hot Stove.

Mix any kind of blacking powder with lard or oil till it is as thick as cream and apply with a cloth to the top of the range. If you go over the entire stove, while it is slightly warm, with a cloth wet with kerosene, before applying the blacking, it will last twice as long. A little brushing each day will keep it shining.

When filling a lamp put in a little salt. You will have a bright light and the oil will not burn so fast.

Scotty Confesses to Bunco Game.

Los Angeles, Nov. 8.—Walter Scott, better known as "Death Valley Scotty," is no longer a man of mystery, following his testimony before Superior Judge Frank R. Willis, in the trial of F. C. Goodin, secretary of the Death Valley Scotty Mining and Development Company, for perjury.

Scotty told his life story from his beginning as a cowboy in Nevada up to the present time. He testified that Goodin was the promoter of the alleged fraudulent company formed to purchase a mythical mine in Nevada, owned by Scotty, and that he, Scotty, had signed a receipt for $25,000 as a first payment on the mine, whereas he only received $200 and expected no more.

CITY OWNERSHIP BEST

Head of Iowa City Makes Interesting and Important Address at Conference.

Sioux City, Iowa.—A strong argument for municipal ownership of public utilities was made at the recent session of the league of the Iowa municipalities by J. F. Frost, mayor of Fort Dodge. Mr. Frost particularized on waterworks and lighting systems, and he gave statistics from hundreds of towns and cities in Iowa and other states to prove that the privately owned services, while costing more, do not give as good satisfaction as do those operated by municipalities.

There were 226 delegates to the convention in the city when the meeting opened.

The delegates got down to work early and the spirit of the convention, given impetus by the rays of sunshine that filtered through the clouds, was lively.

Mr. Frost said that official reports from 354 cities in which water meters were used showed that the rates ranged from 60 cents per 1,000 gallons to 2 cents per 1,000, and that in 53 cities where a flat rate was charged the rates per year for a six-room house ranged from $4 to $15.60. Mr. Frost then compared the cost of water service in cities where plants are owned by private companies with those in cities where the plants are operated by the cities, and his comparisons were decidedly detrimental to the former, especially as regards rates.

He pointed out that the highest uniform rate charged for water service where the plant is owned by the city of Washington, D. C., where 16 cents per 1,000 gallons is charged, while the highest rate in any city whose plant is operated by private company, is 33 cents per 1,000 gallons, which is charged in San Francisco. He declared that of the hundreds of towns and cities which had reported on their waterworks systems and service, all expressed themselves as being favorable to the municipal ownership.

In a like manner Mr. Frost explained that statistics obtained by himself and others gave concrete evidence that electric lighting could be done at a less cost to the public by the municipalities than it is being done by private corporations. He asserted that he had not heard from a city that was dissatisfied with its own electric light plant.

Young Woman Who is Famous as Painter of Smokestacks.

In the November American Magazine appears an article on Mayme Pixley of Jeffersonville, Ind., who took up the trade of smokestack painting because her father, who is in the business, was injured and she found that she could help support the family quickly by taking up his trade. She has customers in three states and goes about her business earnestly and efficiently. Following is an extract:

"But," I persisted, "how did you really happen to follow this trade?" "Happen is right," she said. "I was raised on a farm and have always worked side by side with Pappy since I was twelve. I had six sisters and they took the housework and the cooking upon themselves, for my mother was too much of an invalid to work. There were six to help her and not one to help Pappy."

"Finally, I began to help him plow, and hoe, and shoe the horses on the farm. When I was nineteen we came to Jeffersonville, Ind., to live. Then he again took up his trade of painter—painter of smokestacks."

"One day he fell, and unless the contract was fulfilled he would lose money. I went out to his helper and I told him we must finish the job. We did. That was my first attempt at smokestack painting."

"Now I am quicker than he is, and he often stays down and pulls me up and keeps his eyes on the rope. But when we are called to a distant city we work together on the same smokestack—it's company for us both then. And, too, he would be very lonesome if I did not go around with him."

"The work pays well, and Miss Pixley is ambitious for her family to own a home. She gets all the big contracts from the large distilleries, electric light plants and big flour mills around Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio."

"She was putting some last contemplative dabs on the lower part of the stack as she talked and was still in her 'swing.' As she got up I said: 'If women are given the suffrage this winter, will you vote?'"

"That rusty old smokestack got a few energetic dabs of paint that were not coming to it."

"You bet I will!" she flashed back.
